AUTO SHOW IS REVELATION TO MANY PATRONS

Unusually Fine Displays by Dixon Dealers at Mosher Bldg.

Yesterday afternoon promptly at 2 o'clock the doors of the Mosher Motor Garage were thrown open to the public to view Dixon's third annual automobile show held under the auspices of the Dixon Chamber of Commerce. The people began to arrive and soon the building was filled with folks from both far and near, all taking advantage of the opportunity to compare the various automobiles and accessories on display. The weather was very bad and disagreeable and the management did not expect a large attendance, but over 1,000 people came to view the wonderful exhibits. Everyone left the building impressed with the beauties of the show. The decorations lent a festive appearance to the hall, and with the beautiful cars on exhibit, it was a sight to be compared with only the largest shows of the country. The exhibitors were congratulated by everyone on the extraordinary display of new models for the coming year and left the building filled with pride that such a show could be held in Dixon.

List of Exhibits.
On entering the building the first display is of John Duffy, who is showing a Flint six sedan, Flint six touring and a Star touring. "PRINCIPAL" IS SENATOR CURTIS WITNESS STATES

Coolidge Not Meant in Telegrams to Publisher McLean.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, March 7.—The oil committee was told today that Attorney General Daugherty sent a reassuring message to E. B. McLean in Florida on the day the publisher was summoned to testify in the oil inquiry.

Ira B. Bennett, an editorial writer on McLean's Washington Post, testified the message was sent to McLean after a conference with the Attorney General.

The message included such phrases as "all that is possible to be done will be done by us" and "you know what to depend on."

Bennett then declared a similar assurance had been conveyed through him to McLean on January 29 in the "principal" message.

The "principal" of the message, the witness said, was not President Coolidge but Senator Curtis.

He testified Curtis had told him the publisher should not be disturbed, that it would be "all right."

As partially decoded and placed in the committee record the message Bennett said Attorney General Daugherty had sent through him to McLean follows:

Daugherty Scented Trouble.
"I am at Y's elbow and standing at the guns. All that is possible to be done will be done by us, so you should worry delay selection of prosecutor."

Give Evelyn (Mrs. McLean) my love. I don't want Evelyn to be disturbed as long as I am on the job. You know what to depend on. The fight is on me and I am ready for them and feeling fine."

Attorney General Daugherty also promised to help keep McLean off the witness stand, Bennett testified.

Bennett quoted Daugherty as saying "tell Ned not to worry. He's a side issue. In two or three weeks I'll be in the center of the whole thing. I'll do what I can to help."

"Help in what?" asked Senator Bursum, republican, New Mexico.

"Help McLean not to come up here testify," the witness said.

The "principal" telegram of Jan. 29 of which Bennett said he meant to convey assurances from Senator Curtis said:

"Saw principal, delivered message. He says greatly appreciated and sends regards to you and Mrs. McLean. There will be no rocking of the boat and no resignations. He expects retraction from political attacks."

At a conference that morning Bennett said Senator Curtis had told him to tell McLean he need not worry as he had done nothing wrong except to stand by A. B. Falls. The second sentence of the telegram, the witness declared, related to impressions he had received from President Coolidge's general conference with the Washington correspondents that day.

The Feb. 14 message, he continued, "contains substantially what Mr. Daugherty told me."

"Mr. Daugherty was concerned about Mrs. McLean," Bennett continued. The expression about delay in selecting a prosecutor, he said, appeared to refer to the President's selection of counsel in oil cases.

DIXON DEFEATED IN FIRST BATTLE LASALLE TOURNEY

Princeton Eliminated Bowers' Boys from District Meet.

(Telegraph Special Service)
LaSalle, Ill., March 7.—Dixon high school's basketball team was eliminated from the district tournament in its first game yesterday afternoon, the speedy boys from Princeton being too much for the green team from Lee county, who showed some stage fright in their first half. At the end of the first period the score was: Princeton, 11; Dixon, 2.

In the second period the Dixon boys played a steadier game and gave Princeton a run for their money; but the lead the Bureau county seat lads had piled up in the first was too much for Bowers' five, and they went down to defeat, 18 to 11.

LaSalle-Peru Protest.
A surprise of the evening was the defeat of LaSalle-Peru, 19 to 18, by Granville, in an overtime game. However there was a dispute over the timing of this contest and LaSalle-Peru has filed protest with the state association.

Yesterday's scores here were: Princeton, 19; Dixon, 11. Toluca, 23; Sheffield, 12. Granville, 19; LaSalle-Peru, 18. Putnam, 11; Wyanette, 15. Mendota, 18; Spring Valley, 17.

Tournament Scores.
Scores of nearby teams in various tournaments yesterday were: Freeport, 21; Polo, 17. Rockford, 26; Pecanica, 17. Moline, 21; Cambridge, 17.

Ministerial Assn. Praises Mr. Risley

Sheriff Elliott C. Risley is in receipt of the following communication from the Dixon Ministerial Association, in which he and his force of deputies are highly commended for their work in enforcing the law in Lee county:

Dear Sir: At the regular monthly meeting of the Dixon Ministers' Association, yesterday, a unanimous vote of thanks was tendered you, in appreciation of your splendid service in the apprehension and punishment of law-violators. We commend your fearlessness and alertness in these matters, and want you to know that the community is not ungrateful of your stand and policy. We realize the unpleasant character of much of the work that falls to your office, but in the clean-up of some of the vile bootlegging and immoral resorts you have been attempting you are making a big contribution to the peace and safety and decency of all our homes.

Sincerely yours,
Aubrey S. Moore, President.

New York and Chicago Bishops to Get "Red Hats" in Rome Mar. 27

Rome, March 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—Arch Bishop Hayes of New York and Arch-Bishop Mundelein of Chicago, will receive their red hats, insignia of the cardinalate, at a public consistory, March 27, three days after the secret consistory in which their elevation takes place.

News that they had been designated has taken the Catholic world here somewhat by surprise because two red hats are to be bestowed on the same country at the same consistory. It is conceded, however, that this is done in tribute to the growing importance of the United States in the eyes of the Vatican and as a compliment to the American church and out of the affection of Pope Pius for America and things American.

Importance of America in the councils of the Catholic church has always been given great consideration by the pontiff. Furthermore the American church has been recognized as thoroughly steadfast to the Holy See.

Ex-Crown Prince is Looking for Silver Dinner Set, a Gift

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Berlin, March 7.—Former Crown Prince Frederick William has taken steps to ascertain why the most elaborate wedding gift ever prepared in Germany has not been delivered according to promises made by 400 municipalities at his wedding in 1905. This is a dinner set of 1900 pieces of monogrammed silver, cut glass and finest china, costing several hundred thousand dollars. There were many delays in its manufacture and when the war came the set had not been completed. Now the dinner set reposes in the vaults of the Reichsbank and since William threatens suit there is much confusion among burgomasters who contributed in the name of their respective towns as to what disposition should be made of it. However, they resent any proposal that the set might go toward reparations.

FORMER DIXON MAN KILLED IN RAIL ACCIDENT

E. A. Ortgiesen Victim of Fatal Mishap at Waterloo, Iowa.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Waterloo, Iowa, March 7.—E. A. Ortgiesen, extra conductor on the Illinois Central Railroad, died in a hospital here late yesterday as the result of injuries received when crushed between freight cars at Aylington, Iowa, while acting as brakeman. His home was in Dixon, Ill., but he roomed here since employed by the railroad company. He was unmarried.

The above Associated Press dispatch received this morning brought notice of the sudden death of a well known former resident of Dixon. Members of his family had gone to Waterloo to take charge of the remains. The body will be brought to Dixon tomorrow and funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the home of his sister, Mrs. Emma Held, 321 Hennepin avenue. The service to be in charge of "Friendship," No. 7 A. E. & A. M., with an escort from Dixon Commandery, No. 21, Knights Templar. The Masons will leave their hall promptly at 1:30.

"HIRAM" FIRST REPORTED DEAD, IS NOW MISSING

Shack Nailed Up and No Trace of Candidate is Found.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Lansing, Mich., March 7.—"Zillwaukee Hiram" Johnston, erstwhile candidate for the republican presidential nomination at the Michigan primaries, has found publicity too much for his retiring disposition. First listed as a Saginaw county dirt farmer then listed as dead, "Johnston" now is down as missing.

John Baird, state conservation commissioner, who filed the candidacy petitions and then presented to the secretary of state a letter signed "Hiram Johnston" asking withdrawal of the name from the ballot, blames publicity for the latest obstacle in the search for his candidate in the flesh.

Baird had invited correspondents to accompany him tomorrow to Zillwaukee township and promised to lead them to "Hiram's home." A correspondent decided not to wait and yesterday went to the Johnston shack. The shack, according to his report was boarded up and deserted. The correspondent told Baird of his discovery. Baird showed no surprise. Hiram, he said, had yearned for publicity. However, when someone resurrected a section of the election law that mentioned a $1,000 fine and a jail term for tampering with the statute, Johnston, Baird said, "felt it high time to shake the mud of the Saginaw valley from his high top boots."

William Baird, son of the commissioner, said Johnston was in Bay City Friday night and signed the withdrawal letter.

Lee Co. Boy is in Charge Big Project

Tollis Elide, son of Supervisor Tollef T. Elide of Lee, a Lee county boy, born and raised in the village of Lee, is one of the supervising engineers in an enormous water project now under way in New York state to provide New York City with pure drinking water. The project calls for the carrying of the water a distance of 135 miles from basins in the Catskill mountains to the metropolis. Mr. Elide who has been engaged in this work for a number of years, is but 43 years of age and is a graduate of the University of Illinois in 1904. He went to Nevada after leaving school, where he was employed in a water power project, and was calling upon to go to Panama as a member of the engineering corps in the construction of the great Panama canal. He declined to go into the tropics and went to New York City where he has gained considerable prominence in civil engineering circles.

ACTIVE CAMPAIGN FOR GRADE P. T. A. TO BE INAUGURATED

Planned After Talk By Mrs. Clarence Selby Thursday Evening.

Mrs. Clarence Selby of Sterling, Regional Director of the Illinois Council of Parent-Teachers' Associations, Dist. No. 3, which comprises the seven northwestern counties of the state, was the speaker of the evening at the meeting of the Dixon Grade P. T. A. at the south side high school auditorium Thursday evening and she delighted a large audience with her remarks.

Mrs. Selby has been identified with the Illinois P. T. A. work for ten years. She is the wife of Supt. Clarence Selby of the Union elementary school system of Sterling, which has been recognized as one of the finest of its kind in this part of the state, and she has had a varied experience in educational work as a teacher, social service worker and a mother. She has devoted considerable time to writing and lecturing on problems of child training, and last evening she brought a stirring appeal in behalf of the children of Dixon.

Every Parent's Problem.
Mrs. Selby spoke on the subject of "Every Parent's Problem—How to Meet It." She immediately captured the interest of her audience with the old Hebrew story of Jochbed and the Princess, and said that as the mother of Moses safe-guarded her child, so must every parent conserve child welfare.

The greatest day in the life of every home, she said, is when God commits to the care of the parents a little child to be trained for Him and for a place of usefulness in the world of which the young life is to be a part.

To conserve and develop the child's life becomes the one great problem of the parent and no true parent will sell his privilege of child-training. No love of selfish ease, comfort or pleasure should sacrifice the welfare of a well-born child. His welfare comes first.

It is four-fold in its obligation—physical, mental, spiritual and social. Each side must be equally developed to produce a well-rounded life. Many people go through life with a flat wheel because parents have failed to preserve the child's growth in all four directions. Many a life receives hard joists because the parents and teachers do not develop all sides of the child's growth in ever increasing circumstances to form a perfect, well-rounded, useful citizen.

Co-operation Needed.
No parent can stand alone in preserving his child's welfare. The speaker gave illustrations of how very early outside influences effect each part of a child's growth. The home, the church, the school and the community are co-operative factors in child welfare. The Parent-Teacher Assn. movement grew out of the need of young mothers for help in training children.

One of the chief functions of the P. T. A. is to train parents. Study classes should be formed in every school for fathers and mothers. Many children fail in school because parents do not control their habits in eating, sleeping, recreation and study. Some (Continued on Page Two)

Stowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Bible reading and meditation prepared for Commission on Evangelism of Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

FRIDAY
The Christian Life

Read Mt. 22:34-46. Text: 22:37-39. Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.

"1. To become a Christian is to begin a certain wonderful way of living that men will be glad to continue always, even into the far ages."

"2. In this way of living there is a glad and growing awareness of working with the will of God to create a good world."

"3. Such a good world is one in which all kinds of men work well together, with an invincible goodwill in their hearts."

"4. It is a life which utilizes all the incentives to such work that God has been putting, and still is pouring, into the life of man through the personality of Jesus Christ."

MEDITATION: In the simple words of these commandments Jesus gave the foundation of his gospel. To be a Christian we too must start here and build on this foundation.

PERSONAL QUESTION: What is first in my life?

PRAYER: Heavenly Father, in whose love we find our life, we pray thee to enlarge our capacity for true living by teaching us to love thee as we should, and to look upon all thy children with thy affection. Amen. (Copyright, 1924—F. L. Fagley)

SENATOR HIRAM JOHNSON IN CHARACTERISTIC ATTACK ON THE NATIONAL ADMINISTRATION

Candidate Spoke to Big Audience Here This Afternoon.

MAKES PLEA HERE

HIRAM W. JOHNSON

Senator Hiram Johnson of California, one of the leading men of the Republican party and a candidate for the party nomination for president, was enthusiastically greeted by a capacity audience at the Family Theater this afternoon, when in his forceful way he presented his plea for that nomination. He was introduced by Mayor Frank D. Palmer, and said:

The issues of this campaign were clearly seen at its very inception by the men and women who have followed the governmental trend. Recent events have etched them with a cameo-like distinctness upon the public mind. The situation was entirely clear originally to a few but the sharp and ugly shock of official corruption has made it equally clear to those whose attention by pressing necessity is focused upon daily existence. When my candidacy was announced I said: "Two warring philosophies of Government in the Nation, just as in the state from which I come, struggle for mastery. Reaction and progress must fight it out again in the republican party in the coming Presidential primaries." I then questioned not men but their philosophy of government and insisted that which obtains at Washington does not fit present day needs. Those who have been close to the situation recognized not only the desirability but the necessity for a cleansing of the republican party, understood it full well. All of the people now know it full well.

Recalls Roosevelt.
The situation has its parallel, although not in its abhorrent details in what happened two decades ago. Materialism as a result of extraordinary prosperity and the gradual growth of corporate power arrogated to itself then the right of government control; and among the great services performed by Theodore Roosevelt for this nation, none was greater than arousing the spirit of disinterested public service and quickening the public conscience. His imprint was left upon his times as we hoped indelibly, to their purification and advantage, and the benefit of all the future. He fought the existing system. We fight it again today. Selfish materialism again encroaches upon the nation and this time in the hidden ways of the government. The situation is not only of appropriation but of purchase of the public domain. None would do otherwise than protect the innocent, and it is hoped none can be found who would not punish the guilty. But there is a greater principle at stake than shielding individuals who may not be guilty of moral turpitude or the punishment of those who brazenly have defied the law. The public service itself must be put above all suspicion whether that suspicion arises from criminal guilt or stupid incompetence.

The system which belongs to all must be broken and driven from government. A people's government rests upon the confidence of those who compose it, and where that confidence is shaken there must be no limit to the legitimate effort for its restoration. Just as vigorously as the few individuals who may be guilty should be pursued must the very Temple of Government itself be cleansed.

Attacked Sec. Denby.
Governor Ed. reserved designed for the defense of the nation in the custody of the Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Denby, were transferred to the Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Fall.

The evidence discloses that subsequently they were corruptly leased. The genesis of the proceeding was a transfer from the trustees, the Secretary of the Navy. In his early testimony he said in substance he knew little of the transaction. Later when coming from a meeting of the cabinet, he justified the leases which had been made and said in substance that if he had it to do over again he would do exactly as he had done originally.

The Senate was called upon to cast its vote as to whether or not the Senate should request the President to ask the resignation of the Secretary of the Navy. There was no defense made in the debate in the Senate concerning the acts. The only argument advanced was in reality that the Senate ought not to make such a request of the President. The Senate made the request. The President declined to accede to that request. Subsequently despite the President, Mr. Denby was forced to resign by the force of public opinion.

The question presented to the Senate in reality was one of confidence in the future usefulness or fitness of Mr. Denby and the Senate voted no confidence. And not only has there been a vote of no confidence in one member of the cabinet, the Senate and President alike have expressed so far as acts can express it no confidence in the Attorney General. One of the most powerful offices in the United States under the President is that of the Attorney General. No department presumably is better equipped to meet crises and emergency respecting the government, its property and its affairs than the Department of Justice. Immediately upon the development of the facts regarding the oil land leases, both Senate and President turned away from the Department of Justice and the Attorney General and sought other counsel for the United States. The United States Government is so doubtful of its own Department of Justice that it utilized the money of the tax payers of the country in the employment of other attorneys to undo the terrible work of its own officials. And Mr. Daugherty is still a member of the cabinet.

Issue, Fit Public Service.
There is presented to the republican party an issue here of greater import than any in recent days. It is after all an issue of the public service, efficient, reliable, fit public service. It is in its other aspect an issue of just common honesty, and the republican party must sweep its house and sweep it clean.

The situation today is this: President Coolidge has decreed that Daugherty shall go and Daugherty has decreed that he will stay—and he is staying. There is no question but that Daugherty will go. His position in the cabinet is untenable. It is only a question of time.

What is happening in Washington on merely a part of the government system that I am going to smash and that I am going to smash. There are men in Washington who believe it is their right to exploit government. They have allied themselves with the men who control government.

System Continues.
To fire an individual from the cabinet or other part of the government here and there does not break the alliance, for another man of like kind is immediately chosen to take the place of the one who is fired, and the system goes merrily on its way. We've got to smash that alliance—I mean the American people have got to smash it—smash the system.

The administration has chosen as its allies and as its directors those who increase the salary of Miss Grace Pugh, assistant in the office of the County Superintendents of highway from $60 per month to $80, an increase of 33%.

Seek Legal Information.
The judiciary committee brought in a report in which it recommended that separate ballots and separate ballot boxes be provided for the township and special judicial election to be held next month. The report stated that the state's attorney had been consulted upon the matter and he written to the Attorney General's office for an opinion.

The school house in district 36, Le Center township, was selected as the polling place for the special judicial election to be held next month.

The board voted unanimously to appropriate the sum of $185.25 to the Lee County Farmer's Institute.

A lengthy debate arose shortly before noon today relative to the county veterinarian had made charge for testing cattle against the owner while employed by the county to perform such duties. Supervisor Taylor of Ashton said that in his township exorbitant charges had been made for this work. After several of the members of the board had discussed the matter, it was referred to the county veterinarian committee.

Next month. Other members of the board explained that the County Veterinarian was privileged to make certain charges which the federal aid state department do not provide for and held that he had acted in good faith, also commending him high for the manner in which he has performed his duties.

The board adjourned about noon until 1 o'clock when they will complete their duties.

DON'TS FOR GIRLS—
Don't say "Say."
And don't say "See?"
Don't say "Listen."
And don't say "Gee."

Don't powder your nose
In the public gaze;
Don't polish your nails
In the public ways.

And don't display
Such a length of limb;
Don't dress on the street
As if going to swim.

Don't talk so much about "him" or "his."
Don't say so often, "I'll say it is."
And don't say "dearie."
And don't chew gum.
And then I'll say
The millennium's come.

HOUSE SUGGESTIONS—
Beauty Aids.
Parsnips and carrots should be served frequently, as they are both excellent for the complexion.

Separating Yolks.
One way to be sure that no yolk of the egg gets in with the white, when you are separating them for cakes, is to make a small hole in the side of the shell and let the white run out of this. Then you can break the shell to get the yolk.

Sign of Freshness.
When the shell of a boiled egg dries immediately on being taken from water you may depend upon it the egg is fresh.

Tart Fruits.
It will take less sugar to sweeten your tart fruits if you add a pinch of carbonate of soda while they are stewing.

Prevents Marks.
Keep rounds of waxed paper under the dolly beneath a vase of flowers and your table will collect no white rings.

Silk Garments.
Never rub your silk garments on a washboard. Always rub them with the hands.

Boiling Potatoes.
Add a little lemon juice to the water in which you boil your potatoes, just as they are beginning to boil. This will prevent their becoming dark.

Fried Mush.
Friend mush is much more delicious and has a better appearance if you dip the slices in white of an egg before frying. It makes them crisp and brown.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY.
(A Daily Menu for the Stout and Thin) LOSE WEIGHT.

One-half grapefruit, 1 cup navy bean soup, combination cabbage salad (1 cup), 1 broiled lamb chop, 2 tablespoons diced carrots, 2 tablespoons canned strawberries, 2 small nut cookies, 1 pint buttermilk, 4 thin pieces gluten toast, 1 gluten roll, 1 scant tablespoon butter.

Total calories, 1049. Protein, 206; fat, 306; carbohydrate, 537. Iron, .0212 gram.

Diet Bean Soup.
When the beans are thoroughly cooked, add tender rub through a puree strainer.

To three-quarters cup bean puree add one-quarter cup boiling water and one teaspoon freshly tried-out bacon fat. Bring to the boiling point and add one teaspoon chili sauce or catsup. Stir well and serve very hot. As the beans themselves are lacking in fat they will absorb the bacon fat and you need not worry about its adding many ounces to your weight.

The cabbage salad is seasoned with lemon juice and no oil.
The butter is planned for the carrots and the roll.

GAIN WEIGHT.
One-half grapefruit, two slices broiled bacon, 1 fried egg, 1 cup navy bean cream soup, 4 tablespoons creamed salmon on toast, 1 cup combination cabbage salad, 1 breaded veal cutlet, 2 tablespoons creamed potatoes, 2 tablespoons diced buttered carrots, one-sixth lemon meringue pie, 1 tablespoon grape preserves, 2 toasted corn muffins, 2 slices brown bread, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon sugar, 4 tablespoons cream dressing for cabbage, 2 Parker House rolls, 1 pint whole milk, 2 tablespoons canned strawberries, 4 small nut cookies.

Total calories, 3521. Protein, 418; fat, 1514; carbohydrate, 1589. Iron, .0183 gram.

Since lamb is usually higher in price than veal, if economy is any object it's well worth while serving the family with the cheaper meat which is considered a "fat producing" viand.

If the egg is carefully fried it is not as indigestible as we have learned to believe it. When the fat is hot carefully slip the egg into the spider, reduce the heat and cover. The steam helps cook the egg and makes it the delectable pink over the yolk.

The sugar is planned for the grapefruit and the preserves to accompany the toasted muffins.

American Legion Auxiliary Meeting

The American Legion Auxiliary held a largely attended meeting Wednesday afternoon in G. A. R. hall. Word was received from headquarters that dues must be paid before the last of March.

There was a little discussion as to the eligibility of those who may become members of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Past Commander Sherwood Dixon of the American Legion Post and Commander Jake Snyder were present and addressed the ladies.

The next meeting will be held March 20th, in the evening at the hall.

On Tuesday evening the members will meet and go in a body to Legion hall.

Mrs. Corabell George gave her report of the very successful card party held in G. A. R. hall on Feb. 27th, which netted the ladies the neat sum of $23.25, to be applied on the assessment of 25c per member for Hospital fund of 1923. This assessment is used for state work for disabled soldiers.

Mrs. George Netz then gave the Bible Study, the theme of which was, "Fidelity of the Kingdom," Luke 19: 13-27.

Papers were read by Mrs. Ella Rhodes and Miss Lillie Cunningham. Mrs. Rhodes told of expanding work in Japan, and Miss Cunningham told of progress in the Philippines. These papers were most interesting.

The meeting closed with a splendid talk by Rev. Cleaver on Current Topics.

Dainty refreshments were served during the social hour which followed.

Iroquois Win Final Game of Tournament; Was Overtime Match

In an overtime game and one in which there was considerable rolling about on the floor and various other forms of amusement the Iroquois defeated the Lilly Pops 8-4 in the final game for the championship of the Intermediate basketball tournament.

The game was one of the most spirited battles fought in the tournament and at the close of the first half neither team had been able to score a point and at the close of the regular playing time each team had but three points apiece.

In the overtime period the Iroquois seemed to be the better team and secured enough points to carry the contest. In the other game the Red Carriers won their first and only game by defeating the Angels 18-7 which places these two teams in a tie for last place.

TWO GAMES TOMORROW

lic relationship opened up a new field for a life work for the H-Y members.

Reports brought in by the committee working on the big ladies night next week showed that the event will eclipse anything yet done by the club. Once each year the club gives a banquet to their lady friends and this year the Sterling H-Y club with their lady friends will also be present. Arrangements have been made for the program, including an orchestra from Chicago, special songs written for this particular occasion, paper hats and decorations in keeping with St. Patrick's day. Every boy is working to make the event a real success.

SCRAMBLE SUPPER TONIGHT.
Tonight is the night when all "Y" members 14 or over meet for a scramble supper at 6 o'clock. The purpose is to organize a club for boys along the lines of the H-Y club having the development of the boys physically, mentally, religiously and socially in mind.

GILDING AND TARRING THE LILY.

While damning Governor Small in one column because the State Pardon and Parole Board has granted paroles to prisoners who have reached the parole stage, the Chicago Tribune in another column damns the federal government for keeping murderers, rapists and other criminals who have disgraced the uniform, behind the bars in Leavenworth prison.

The only consistency to be found in the latest attitude of the Tribune on the prisoner question is the fact that it evidently regards it as consistent to gild the lily if it is one's own, but to paint the lily black if it belongs to the other fellow.

This in a nut-shell is the Tribune's policy in politics. If Small and Deneen were its choice for office, it would be Essington and McCormick who would be made to feel every instrument of attack known to newspaper trickery.

Out at Leavenworth penitentiary are several score military prisoners who were convicted of murder, crimes against women, robbery, embezzlement, desertion and other army and civil crimes. Meanwhile slackers and foreign plotters have been granted clemency. The Tribune thinks there is no justice in keeping in prison men who broke under army discipline and privately committed a crime, no matter if that crime was unspeakable, while slackers have been set free.

"Every military prisoner in Leavenworth is entitled to a careful and comprehensive review of his case for the purpose of action toward his release," declares the Tribune, thus admitting without any qualification the merit of the pardon and parole system, which in the State of Illinois the same newspaper is attacking in every issue that comes from the press.

Some of these men in Leavenworth are without doubt hardened criminals. They would murder or ravish as quickly in the army uniform as they would in civilian clothing. For the army had its "bad men" just as every body of society has them. There were criminals in the ranks, and fugitives from justice there. The honest, upright, patriotic soldier is not to blame for that. Neither are criminals entitled to wholesale or blanket clemency because they were in the army.

As a matter of fact, the federal prison system should have a pardon and parole plan like that in effect in Illinois. The men who want to make good, given a second chance, could thus get out of serving unduly long terms, while those whose crimes are too revolting to entitle them to trust, would pay their full penalty.

It is easy to say that the State Parole Board is turning guilty men out of jail. If they were not guilty they would not have been in jail. Their prison conduct, and the nature of crime, is taken into consideration when the legal time set by state law rolls around for review of the case. Then they are paroled to an individual, responsible under the law, for seeing that the paroled prisoner remains on good behavior.

Many a parole has been turned back due to a very minor infraction of the law. Staying up late at night, becoming intoxicated, beating a board bill, these and other things have resulted in paroled men and women going back to complete their sentences.

If we could free only the innocent, nobody would be freed, at least not more than once every blue moon.

And so the pardon and parole system works in the states. It seems to go along all right for three years, but every fourth year—campaign year—the partisan press raises the cry that it is all wrong. There has probably never been a governor yet, who every fourth year has not wished that the system had never been created, or at least had not been made a part of his appointive powers.

In the same issue of the Tribune yesterday in which parole is demanded for federal convicts, appears a full column story of the freeing, after three years and seven months, of a state prisoner serving an indeterminate sentence of from one to twenty years for robbery.

It is not mentioned, but every county prosecutor knows it to be a fact, that such a prisoner, under first conviction, if he behaved himself while in prison, is entitled under the law to have his case reviewed by the Parole Board at the expiration of eleven months.

And yet this man served not only his eleven months, but was confined for forty-one months.

If this be scandal, then there are white blackbirds. The Tribune is trying to prove daily that there are black lilies. —Lincoln Courier-Herald.

Underwood, prospective democratic presidential candidate, gets his name mixed in the oil probe. It seems that A. Mitchell Palmer, attorney general under Wilson, and attorney for McLean, the Washington publisher, induced Underwood to use his influence with Senator Walsh of Montana to forestall the calling of McLean before the probing committee. But perhaps it's just as well for Underwood that he failed.

Now that 87 percent of the Bok referendum have voted for the peace plan it is seen that the Bok plan has worked out just as it was intended to. The 13 percent may be a little more than was anticipated.

The Twins reached up and tugged at the big strings.

"Tuppence apiece!" cried the jolly fiddler at the fair. "Tuppence apiece, or three for a spenny bit, to get in and hear the Fiddling Fiddle from Fairyland."

And all the Beanstalk people followed him in wonder, carefully counting out their pennies that they might hear the wonderful fiddle that could play by itself.

"It's like all the other strange things that have happened in Beanstalk Land lately," said an old lady with a wag of her head. "Like the boots that walked alone, and the queer way Johnny Stout's mother's clock acted." And she passed in with all the others, for the ticket-man said the fiddler was welcome to his tent.

When the tent was as full of Beanstalk people as it could hold (and the fiddler's pockets as full of money as they could hold), it was time to begin. Nancy and Nick, away down inside of the hollow fiddle, could hear everything that was going on, but they kept well out of sight, you may be sure.

"Fairyland Fiddle, please quickly obey And show the good people how well you can play."

Cried the jolly fiddler, laying the bow on the table and putting the fiddle to his chin.

Instantly the Twins reached up from their hiding place and tugged at the big strings. Such a noise! But in spite of the fact that the tune wasn't anything to boast of, it did seem as though the fiddle was bewitched. "Marvelous!" said one Beanstalk Lander.

"Amazing!" cried another. "The only thing," said still another one "is that it's a most peculiar tune!" "Oh!" exclaimed the jolly fiddler. "That's because it is Fairyland music and much too fine for us to appreciate!"

And so it went. And soon there wasn't a man in Beanstalk Land as rich as the poor fiddler.

"And now I am rich enough!" thought he, "so I shall turn my steps homeward and take these good fairy children back to the place I found them."

He bade goodbye to the good folk at the fair and started down the road playing a merry tune with his bow.

Pretty soon they met a beggar. "I have so much and he has so little, I'll divide," said the jolly fiddler. So he gave the beggar all the tuppence pieces in one pocket. Then he went on.

By and by they met a cripple. "I have so much and he has so little, I'll divide again," said the jolly fiddler. So he gave him all in the other pocket.

Next he met a chimney sweep. "Poor soul, he looks so poor," said the fiddler. "I'll divide." And he gave him all he had left.

Then he set the Twins gently on the ground and said goodbye.

AVERAGING THEM UP

BY BERTON BRALEY

It's true the histories are filled With prophets, laughed at in their day.

Who, after they were dead—or killed, Were proven right in every way. Yet for one true prophetic wight Ten corks were jeered at by the throng.

The crowd is generally right, The prophet, generally wrong.

If every dreamer's dream came true, If every prophet's words were fact, The "mob" would take another view Of what they say and how they act.

But bolshevik and blatherskite Have proved through many years and long, The public's generally right, The prophet, generally wrong.

So go ahead and prophesy, Expound your theory or scheme; If you're correct, why by and by It will be better than a dream.

For only time can settle quite With just which outfit you belong, With those few prophets who were right Or that vast number who were wrong.

SOAKS RIGHT IN AND LIMBERS UP STIFF JOINTS

Pharmacists call it "Joint-East" because it's for Swollen, Sore, Painful, Creaky Joints Only.

It took a good many years to get together a combination of pain subduing and swelling reducing agents declared to be the one remedy that almost instantly penetrates through skin and flesh and starts right in to make swollen, inflamed, creaky, pain racked joints as good as new.

They call this new and wonderful preparation "Joint East" because the medical man who turned the trick, worked for years to perfect some low-priced remedy that would really benefit the millions of people who have one or more joints that need helpful attention.

So "Joint East" is prepared only for people who have a swollen, painful, creaky, distorted or stiff joint, whether it be in knee, elbow, shoulder, ankle, neck or finger and whether it is caused by rheumatism or something else.

Of course, it can't help but quickly put an end to such superficial ailments as lumbago, neuralgia, neuritis, aching muscles, stitch in the side, crick in the neck or sore feet because of its penetrating action, but what it is really recommended for is joint ailments of any nature whatever.

Ask for a tube of "Joint East." You can use it several times in one evening for quick results, because it goes right through the skin with only a few seconds rubbing. It surely is a swift penetrator and when it gets under the skin, it starts right in to clean up all joint trouble.

Public Drug & Book Co., and all druggists dispense it daily for about 60 cents a tube, as do first-class druggists everywhere.—Adv.

EPWORTH LEAGUE NOTES

EPWORTH LEAGUE NOTES

Marie Lentz instead of Verna Fay. White had charge of Sunday's meeting and Miss White will lead next week. This change was necessary for Miss White was unable to take charge last Sunday. "Methodism in the World" proved an interesting topic for discussion. A number took up the problems and work in several countries including China, Japan, the Straits Settlements, India, Africa, Chile and Italy. Of course this work touched on the work being carried on in forty different lands. Industrial schools, day schools, church buildings and the adequate distribution of literature seemed to be outstanding problems. Literature is an especially important problem from the standpoint of expense for one pamphlet must often be published in several dialects in the same country in order to reach the people. This was the second meeting of the World Service series.

The Leap Year party given by the Fourth Department last Thursday was a decided success. Forty young people gathered in the large room at the rear of the church which was decorated in Epworth League colors, red and white. Clever games in which all had a part were enjoyed. Later in the evening everyone went to the lower rooms where delightful refreshments were served by Misses Ruth and Mabel Smith. A number of new young folks were present and everyone attending had a pleasant evening.

The Intermediate cabinet meets this week at the home of Mrs. Powell to discuss plans. Leaders for the four coming meetings will also be there.

Maroons' Chances in Big Ten Are Brightest

By Associated Press Licensed Wire
Chicago, March 7.—Championship of the Western Conference in basketball lies between Wisconsin, Chicago and Illinois, Purdue being eliminated through its defeat last night by Chicago 35 to 21.

Chicago, whose hopes are brightest, must defeat Wisconsin in the final game at Madison Saturday. Both teams have lost three games. Should Wisconsin win all three of its remaining games, two with Iowa and one with Chicago, it will take the championship. If Wisconsin drops one game to Iowa but beats Chicago, Chicago and Wisconsin will be tied.

Illinois' chances are slimmest. The Illini have lost four battles and must defeat Michigan and Minnesota as well as rely on victories over the Maroons by the Badgers and by Iowa over Wisconsin to tie.

Chicago and Wisconsin are now in first and second positions respectively. Purdue is in a triple tie with Ohio and Indiana for fourth, and Illinois is third.

Don't let constipation make you an invalid—relieve it with Kellogg's Bran

Few people realize how dangerous is constipation until this dread disease tears down their health. Did you know that more than forty serious diseases can be traced to constipation?

Keep your health, or restore it, with Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled. It brings relief in mild and chronic cases of constipation. It is effective because it is ALL bran. That is why it is recommended so highly by doctors. They know that only ALL bran can bring 100 per cent results. Part bran is, at best, only a halfway measure.

If eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran will bring permanent relief—even in the most chronic case. It is guaranteed to do so. If it fails, your grocer will return your money.

Because it is ALL bran it sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine. Like nature, it acts naturally. It makes the intestine function regularly.

Eat it every day—two tablespoons—in chronic cases, with every meal. Eat it with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Enjoy it in those wonderful recipes given on every package.

The Flavor of Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is delicious. It is crisp, nut-like. Quite different from ordinary bran, which are so unpalatable. Kellogg's Bran is made in Battle Creek and served by the leading hotels and clubs everywhere. Sold by all grocers.

JOHNSON HITS ADMINISTRATION IN SPEECH HERE

National Convention in 1920 passed a resolution commanding within a year the Republican National Committee to adopt a "just and equitable basis" of representation in future national conventions. The National Committee obeyed and within the year acted, and while its action did not constitute a just and equitable representation, nevertheless, it reduced the delegates in southern states where there is no republican party.

The reduction was a mere step in the right direction. It did not do justice to the real republicans, but it furnished the basis for further reductions. This work of the national committee, solemnly done after full hearings, and the scandalous and unfair representation accorded southern states in past conventions was again given them.

South's Representation
Nine southern states, Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, Texas and Virginia, polled 489,000 votes for President Harding. These nine southern states have 134 delegates to the Republican National Convention, Illinois polled 1,420,480 votes for President Harding and Illinois has 61 delegates. Indiana polled 836,000 votes for President Harding and Indiana has 33 delegates to the Republican National Convention. Ohio polled 1,182,500 votes for President Harding and Ohio has 51 delegates to the Republican National Convention. Ohio polled two and a half times as many Republican votes as the nine southern states and these nine southern states have more than two and a half times as many delegates as Ohio. The state of South Carolina polled for President Harding 250,000 votes and has 11 delegates to the Republican National Convention. Illinois polled over 500 times as many Republican votes in 1920 as did South Carolina, and yet by the apportionment of delegates, one Republican in South Carolina, where there is no Republican party, and where delegates are chosen by a few discredited federal office holders, equals more than one hundred Republicans in Illinois in the councils of the Republican party.

A part of the propaganda, particularly among those of big business interests, is directed against the so-called Soldiers Adjusted Compensation Bill. From my standpoint this subject is no longer debatable. We can reduce all of the taxes now existing on incomes under $10,000,000 exactly as in the plan presented and we can reduce other taxes in some degree, and we can also keep our promise to pay the soldiers their due.

Talked on Bonus
Let us not forget that the principle of adjusted compensation is the principle that our government has already firmly established. We adopted that principle in regard to the business of the country. Congress passed a bill by which the compensation of those who were engaged in war contracts with the government, which ceased with the termination of the war was adjusted.

We adopted the principle of adjusted compensation for the railroads of the land. The mining interests were taken care of by the War Minerals Act, and every business engaged with the government during the war was compensated by the government. Upon this principle of adjusted compensation we have paid out something near $3,000,000,000.00. Business insisted upon the principle of adjusted compensation and business received the benefit of adjusted compensation. Business would now deny the same principle to the man who bared his body to shot and shell across the sea. When business ought to have its losses made good and when the government of the United States responded to its appeal, there was no cry about commercialized patriotism, no self-righteous stuff about fighting for the country's cause and seeking no other award. There was the insistent demand by those dealing with the government for compensation for money recompense for injury or loss or damage, although business during the war, you and I know, in many instances profited far more than in any other period of history. This is not a question now of commercialized patriotism of the men who fought the war. This is a question of deserved recognition, in small degree, and that recognition is payment by the government of an adjusted compensation.

Contrast the $30 per month received by the soldier during the war with what those at home made during that period. Oh, ye business men, who protest against recognition of the soldier now, remember your attitude then! And remember, you might not have had any business demanding that it receive its adjusted compensation from the government, but for the fact who was fighting in your behalf for $30 per month. Out of the $30 per month from many of them $15 were taken as an allotment for relatives, and $5.00 per month to pay insurance, so that out of $30 per month the soldier had left, in many many instances, an average of $9.00 per month, or 30c per day. He asks now pitifully small adjustment of the disparity in what was paid him and what was paid those who stayed at home! and he ought to have it in recognition of his service and his valor, his privations and his sacrifices, and it ought ungrudgingly to be given. And some business men, paying taxes upon incomes of one hundred, two hundred, five hundred thousand or a million dollars per year, would deny it!

Not only was the principle of adjusted compensation recognized by our government and accepted by our business men, and not only was the money paid to them upon that principle, but the government of the United States during the war, and for some months thereafter, actually paid a bonus to its civilian employees. We paid $20.00 per month during the war as a bonus, and we have paid to our employees in this bonus more than double the sum that is asked by the soldiers of the republic. Certain of the great captains of industry in this nation, those whose incomes are beyond the dream of avarice of the ordinary man, prate, and prate, and prate again about commercialized patriotism. When these gentlemen have paid back into the treasury of the United States the profits they made during the war, they may be heard about commercialized patriotism, but until that day arrives, let them keep silent on the pitiful sum that is asked by the men who sheltered them and their business and enabled them to make their unholy profits.

And remember this adjusted compensation bill can be passed and the sums due under it paid by the Government, and taxes reduced, too.

Wants Aid for Farmer
The awful plight in which our farmers find themselves is now known to everybody. Ignorant and harsh would he be who does not view this situation with wholehearted sympathy and who would not go any length to aid. And when we recall that primarily the Government itself is responsible, when we remember the frenzied appeals to farmers to plant more wheat, and their generous and patriotic response; when the consequences of deflation are borne in mind, not only would we individually render the assistance required, but we would have the Government itself seek to remedy a part of its wrong.

Eloquently to point the disastrous conditions, to describe the havoc that has been wrought, without suggestion of a real remedy, is but to increase the misgivings and add to the injustice.

The ordinary industrial sections of the country are most prosperous. The chief industry, agriculture, not only languishes, but suffers most acutely. Low prices uniting with high cost of operation are throttling it. The farmer must sell in a low market and buy in a high market. He is told by his self-appointed friends in Washington how much they feel his troubles, but that he must help himself and return to a diversified farming. Natural economic law is invoked in his behalf, and if natural economic laws would bring him salvation he would rejoice but the waiting period will bring him only ruin.

The farmer has the right to ask his Government for protection. He is entitled to the same generosity the Government extends to manufacturing and railroads. If Government action can bring him relative prices between the commodities he produces and those he has to purchase, he should have it.

One bill now pending in Congress approximates this, and we think strikes at the rest of the agricultural troubles. The McNary-Haugen bill aims to restore a "ratio" price on the principle staples, so that a bushel of wheat, a pound of beef or a pound of pork may have the same purchasing power as in the pre-war period. It plans Governmental aid in practical cooperation among the widely scattered farmers. It is not Government price fixing, as generally understood, for the plan proposed is intended to be self-supporting without burden upon the Treasury, except for the initial revolving fund for the Export Corporation.

Consistently I have supported every measure designed to help agriculture. The McNary bill now presents in my opinion, the one hope of real aid. It probably will require some amendment but its principle promises success.

Of course, the Government alone cannot bring full prosperity to the farming regions; but it can aid, and it can give the farmer a fair chance to win in his long struggle for equity. This it must do.

And it must not be forgotten that where suffering is most distressing in the wheat growing districts, the Government, during the war, reduced the price of wheat and held it down, while the commodities necessary to farmers were permitted to soar.

Diversification, where possible, higher tariff, lower freight rates, all may be some service; but of all the plans presented, the most promising now seems the McNary bill.

Charging a deliberate attempt was being made "by the Coolidge managers to prevent free expression of the sentiment of the electorate in the primary states" the Senator declared he would "continue to expose the humorous tricks of the campaign wherever they are found."

In a statement he referred to the "humorous attempt of the Coolidge managers in Michigan to enter a dead man in the state presidential primary to confuse the voters" and said he had encountered "just such little jokes" in four primary states.

"It is a curious thing to find so many jocular Coolidge managers—and all of them in primary states," he said. He explained that an investigation of the attempted to enter Hiram Johnston as a presidential candidate in Michigan had resulted in an explanation through the press that the filing was "just a bit of humor."

THE NUT CRACKER

Stories from training camps tell all about sore arms. Stories about sore heads will come when managers start swinging the ax.

Baseball has at least progressed to a point where a player must have more than one clean shirt to be known as the Beau Brummel of his team.

Prince Goho Gobar, a visitor, says wrestling is almost a religion in India, whereas it is positively an outrage here.

The Passaic High School basketball squad has just scored its one hundred and thirty-seventh straight win, which is about seven under par for the invincibility course.

President of Yale wants to bar coaches from football games. Then the grandstand managers could run the teams just as they pleased.

Joe Lynch is growing a mustache. But he will have long, white whiskers before he crawls into a ring with a regular fighter again.

Rickard is accused of turning over $39,000 worth of fight tickets to a bootlegger. Which is a whole lot of dough to pay for a quart even in these days.

News from South America is that Firpo has learned to use his left hand. Well, they can trust him with a knife and fork now.

When Gibbons heard Dempsey had been operated upon he is said to have commented as follows: "Well, I hope they amputated his left hook."

Two sharks have been killed at Palm Beach. The dispatches fail to say whether they were playing mah jongg or bridge.

FORTUNE'S FOOL

BY RAFAEL SABATINI ILLUSTRATED BY R. W. SATERFIELD

ORIGINAL SABATINI PAPER. RELEASED BY NFA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Colonel Holles, soldier and adventurer, returns to England, his native land, where war with Holland is declared. It is dangerous for Holles to secure a commission in the English army because the name of Randal Holles, father of the colonel, is on the warrant for the execution of the late king.

His Grace of Buckingham hires Holles to abduct the beautiful actress, Sylvia Paragon. It is dark when the colonel carries her off, and when he arrives at the house Buckingham has rented. Holles is horror-struck when he sees that Sylvia is an old sweetheart.

When the Duke arrives upon the scene the colonel demands Sylvia's immediate release. When Buckingham refuses the two engage in a duel. Sylvia is a horrified spectator. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Holles grinned at him. "I little thought when I saved your life that night at Worcester that I should be faced with the need to take it thus." And then the blades ground together again, and they were engaged in deadly earnest.

CHAPTER XIX The Battle

I DO NOT suppose that any two men ever engaged with greater confidence than those. Each regarded the other half contemptuously, as a fool rushing upon his doom.

Holles was a man of his hands, trained in the hardest school of all, and although for some months now sword practice had been a thing neglected by him, yet it never occurred to him that he should find serious opposition in a creature whose paper environment was the Court rather than the camp. The Duke of Buckingham, whilst making so parade of the fact, was possibly the best blade of his day in England. He regarded the present affair merely as a tiresome interruption to be brushed aside as speedily as possible.

Therefore he attacked with vigor, and his very contempt of his opponent made him careless. It was well for him in the first few seconds of that combat that Holles had reflected that to kill the Duke would be much too serious a matter in its ultimate consequences and possibly in its immediate ones. For Buckingham's lackeys were at hand, and after disposing of their master, he must still run the gauntlet of those fellows before he could win freedom with Nancy. His aim, therefore, must be to disarm or disable the Duke, and then, holding him at his mercy, compel from him the pledges to suffer their un molested departure.

So far Holles had fought on almost academic lines, no more, indeed, being necessary for the purpose he had been setting himself. But now that this purpose was changed, and finding that mere speed and vigor could not drive his point beyond the Duke's iron guard, he had recourse to more liberal methods. There was a trick—a deadly, never-failing trick—that he had learned years ago from an Italian master, a soldier of fortune who, like himself, had drifted into mercenary service with the Dutch. He would essay it now.

He side-stepped to the left, and lunged on a high line of tierce, his point aimed at the throat of his opponent. The object of this was no more than to make the Duke swing round to parry. Without meeting the opposing blade as it shifted to the threatened line, Holles dropped his point and his body at the same time, until he was supported, at fullest stretch, by his left hand upon the ground. Upward under the Duke's guard he whirled his point, and the Duke, who had been carried—as Holles had calculated that he would be—a little too far round in the speed required, thus unduly exposing his left flank, found that point coming straight for his heart. He was no more than in time to beat it aside with his left hand, and even so it ripped through the sleeve of his doublet and tore his flesh just above the elbow.

But for that wound there might well have been an end of Holles. For this trick of his was such that it must succeed or else leave him that essayed it momentarily at the mercy of his antagonist. That moment presented itself now; but it was gone again before the Duke had mastered the twitch occasioned him by the tearing of his arm. His recovery and downward-driven riposte were swift, but too late by half a heart-beat. Holles was no longer there to be impaled.

They smiled grimly at each other as erect they stood, pausing a second after that mutually near escape of death. Then, as a succession of resounding blows fell upon the door, Holles drove at him again with redoubled fury.

Holles realized that there was no time to lose; Buckingham, that his safety lay in playing for time, and allowing the other's furious attacks to spend themselves against his defense. Twice again, despite his wound, he used his left hand, from which the blood was dripping freely, to dash aside the other's blade. Once he did it with impunity. But when he repeated the action, Holles took advantage of it to fling himself suddenly forward inside the Duke's guard, until they were breast to breast, and with his own left he seized the Duke's sword-wrist in a grip that paralyzed it. Before, however, he could carry out his intention of shortening his sword, his own wrist was captive in the Duke's blood-smear left hand. He sought to force himself free of that grip. But the Duke maintained it with the tenacity born of the desperate knowledge that his life depended on it, that if he loosened his hold there would be an instant end of him.

Thus now in this fierce corpse-corpse they writhed and sawed hither and thither, snarling and panting and tugging, whilst the sound of the blows upon the door announced the splintering of a panel, and Nancy, half-swooning in her chair, followed the nightmare struggles of the two men in wide-eyed but only half-seeing terror.

And then under a final blow the door all splintered about, the lock flew open and the grooms flowed into the room to their master's rescue. Holles tore his wrist free at the same moment by a last wrench. But it was too late. Casting the Duke's sword hand from him, he sprang away and round with a tearing shout to face the lackeys. For a second his glittering point held them at bay. Then the blow of a club shivered the blade, and they rushed in upon him. He felled one of them with a blow of the hilt which he still retained, before a club took him across the skull. Under that blow he reeled back against the table, his limbs sagged, and he sank down in a heap, unconscious.

As he lay there one of the grooms, standing over him, swung his club again with the clear intention of beating out his brains. But the Duke arrested the descending blow.

"It is not necessary," he said. He was white and breathing hard from his exertions and there was a fevered glitter in his eyes. But these signs apart he was master of himself.

"Your arm, monseigneur!" cried Francois, pointing to the blood that filled his sleeve.

"Bah! A scratch! Presently." Then he pointed to the prone limp figure of Holles, from whose head the blood was slowly trickling. "Get a rope, Francois, and truss him up." Francois departed on his errand. "You others, carry Antoine out. Then return for Bohadil. I may have a use for him yet."

They trooped out obediently, and Buckingham, still very pale, but breathing now more composedly, turned to Nancy with a queer little smile on lips that looked less red than usual.

CHAPTER XX The Conqueror

SHE had reached that point of endurance at which sensibility becomes mercifully dulled. She sat there, her head resting against the tall back of the chair, her eyes closed, a sense of physical nausea pervading her.

Case Co. Omitted Quarterly Dividend

New York, March 6.—Directors of the J. I. Case Threshing Machine Company of Racine, Wisconsin today omitted the quarterly dividend of 1 1/4 percent on preferred stock due at this time. The news caused a break of ten points in the stock which dropped to fifty, a new low for the year.

W. J. Davis, president, stated that the company's cash position was strong due to conservative policies and that the balance sheet December 31, showed annual profits of approximately $634,000 against $321,000 the year before. In neither year however, had the company earned the annual dividend requirements of $910,000 for the preferred, he said, but the directors paid dividends last year from the accumulated surplus. Current assets at the end of 1923 were about $20,600,000 compared with liabilities of less than $5,300,000.

Charge Anti-Saloon League Represents Business, Not Church

Washington, March 6.—The Anti-Saloon League was charged today with being a representative of big business instead of the Christian churches in an open letter sent to members of congress by the joint legislative committee for modifying the Volstead Act.

The committee charged that the league had "broadcast" that it controlled congress and urged congress to investigate where the money for the league came from. Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the league, was charged in the letter with trying to block "very movement to expose the corrupting influences in prohibition enforcement."

"God" will be the subject of a series of doctrinal sermons given every Sunday morning at 10:30 at the Compton M. E. church. These sermons will deal with the most vital of human interests. The themes to be discussed will be the themes which underlie our Christian faith. Special music for this service will be furnished by the ladies choir. The first attendance last Sunday was due to a large extent to the efforts of those who brought friends. With due apologies to the poet, we might say:

A new organization called the Countryside Golf Club has been formed by a number of business and professional men of Compton. As the name indicates the sole purpose of the club is for the promotion of golf. The Club has leased a pasture from Roy Eggers for the coming year and as soon as the weather permits will roll parts of the ground. The club has decided upon a maximum membership of twenty-five to prevent overcrowding of the rather small grounds. Seventeen have already stated their intention of belonging to the club and the membership will undoubtedly be filled by the time the grounds are ready for play. If the weather is favorable for early work, the grounds should be open for play by the first of April. At a meeting held Thursday evening constitution and bylaws were adopted. Officers for the coming year are D. C. Thompson and L. M. Corwin.

Miss Eva Feldkirchner spent the week-end with her parents near Dixon.

Mrs. Ella Henry of near Paw Paw

Louis Moore and family of Dixon visited a couple of days recently with friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover Carnahan and son, Clifford, were entertained Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Bernardin.—E. L. M.

LETTER FROM SALLY ATHERTON TO BEATRICE GRIMSHAW, CONTINUED

At last I am going to try and finish this letter, although it is very late and I am afraid I shall finish it rather abruptly. I am sleepy and tired and rather mixed up in my mind, but to get back to my homily on love and its effect on John Alden Prescott.

When I told him that men are perfectly content to write 'finis' and start another book, if they have found another heroine who promises an extra fillip to their curiosity, he rose to his feet looking as though he were going to deliver a very portentous speech. But, thinking better of it, he remarked, "I am going to lunch."

He had hardly left the room and I had gotten out this letter again, thinking I would finish it, when there came a call for copy.

There was a great commotion in the composing room over a lost page when I arrived there and it took me all the afternoon to write new copy and straighten things out.

I came back to my office after six nervous and exhausted. It did not make me feel any happier to see John Alden Prescott coming in the door smiling and vigorous.

He had evidently been on the golf course since luncheon (I, of course, had had no luncheon—somehow I find no time to eat in the middle of the day lately).

"I have come back to take you to dinner," he said. His tone and manner infuriated me. He seemed so sure that I would go. He seemed sure that he was doing the right thing.

"Thank you, it is most kind and thoughtful of you, but you see I have at least an hour's work here. Then I am going home, have some toast and hot milk sent up to my bed and go to sleep if possible."

"You are not cross with me?" he asked in surprise. "I thought I would find you anxious to finish your discussion on love when I returned. I have been thinking of it all afternoon. That's why, maybe, I made 18 holes in bogey."

"I'm glad I improved your golf, but I must decline to add any more to your evident enjoyment of life by furnishing your evening's entertainment." Then I explained the lost copy and my hours of work in fixing the matter up.

"Oh, I'm so sorry, so sorry, dear," he said.

"My name is Mrs. Atherton, Mr. Prescott."

"Great Scott woman, I didn't mean anything."

"Yes you did." You meant I was a woman. You wouldn't have called a man 'dear' under any circumstances. Neither would you have told him you were sorry."

I had gotten under his skin, Bee, and the color rose in waves over his face.

"No, I don't expect I would. Neither do I expect that, had you been a man, would you have complained to me about the copy in such woe-begone tones. You would have considered it all in a day's work."

I had been busily putting on my coat and hat, as I had decided not to do that hour's extra work. I turned and nodded to John Alden Prescott sweetly and smiled, "Good-night."

And Bee, that's that. Lovingly your discouraged, SALLY.
